Executive Overview

- Strong Growth in 2025 driven by In-Store Sales and key customer segments.
- Operational Inefficiencies exist in Returns and Store performance.

Sales Performance

- Total Sales increased significantly from ~302K (2024) to ~515K (2025) → ~70% growth
- In-store channel dominates revenue, contributing more than double online sales
- Peak sales period: Early 2025 (Jan–Mar), followed by moderate fluctuations
- Top-selling products consistently contribute high volumes (top 5 clustered closely)

- Interpretation

Growth is healthy but heavily dependent on physical stores, indicating channel imbalance risk

Customer Insights

○ Interpretation

Core revenue is driven by mid-age working professionals

Younger segment is under-penetrated → growth opportunity

Product Performance

- Top category: Personal Care (~73K profit)
- Lowest category: Home & Kitchen (~62K)
- Return rates across categories are similar (~16–17%)

- Interpretation

- No extreme product failure, but:
- Uniform return rate suggests systemic issues (quality, logistics, or expectations)

Returns Analysis

- Total Returns: 200
- Highest returns region: East (67)
- Return rate trend: Fluctuating between ~3%–14%, no stable improvement

○ Interpretation

- Returns are volatile, not consistently improving
- Potential causes:
 - Product mismatch
 - Delivery/service quality
 - Customer expectation gaps

Store Performance

TOTAL STORES: 61

ONLINE STORE HAS
HIGHEST PROFIT

SEVERAL STORES
HAVE HIGH COSTS VS
LOW PROFIT

- Interpretation

Strong performers exist, but:

Many stores are cost-heavy and underperforming

Store-level optimization is required

Key Risks

- Key Business Risks

- Over-reliance on in-store sales channel
- High and unstable return rates
- Uneven store profitability
- Underutilized younger customer segment

Strategic Recommendations

- Revenue Growth

- Expand online channel marketing
- Target age 16–25 segment with pricing/offers

- Returns Reduction

- Improve:
 - Product descriptions
 - Quality control
 - Delivery accuracy
- Introduce return reason tracking dashboard

- Store Optimization

- Identify:
 - High-cost, low-profit stores → optimize or restructure
- Replicate strategies from top-performing stores

- Product Strategy

- Focus on:
 - High-performing categories (Personal Care)
 - Improve weaker categories (Home & Kitchen)

Conclusion

- The business is in a strong growth phase, but sustainability depends on:
- Channel diversification
- Return reduction strategies
- Operational efficiency at store level
